

Hillel, Superdelegate

Hillel _____ at the convention. He was feeling a little _____, having just _____ to the candidates Verb past tense Adj Verb past tense

_____ and _____ about their platforms. Everyone was wearing _____ with the names of their candidate.
Verb Verb Plural Noun

There were too many _____ with cameras covering the event. Hillel began to sweat. Obama was winning the _____ Plural Noun Adj

vote, but Hillary had an army of _____ just waiting to _____ the _____. A man in a _____ suit Plural Noun Verb Noun Noun approached him. "So," he said, "who are you _____ for?" Hillel shrugged. "I'm supposed to _____ the popular Verb ending in ing Verb vote, aren't I?" "Only if you want the _____ candidate to _____ the election." The sweat was _____ Adj Verb Verb ending in ing down Hillel's neck. _____ onto candidates if you want them to _____ onto you, he thought. Just as a Verb Verb

camera _____ down, Hillel couldn't take it anymore. He ran _____ out of the auditorium. _____, Verb past tense Adverb Exclamation that was close, he thought. And let us say, (Hence the Irony!)